Shingle Hut Creek Nature Refuge

This very unique 2300 acre property is definitely a place for the nature lovers to let themselves run wild. There are many different opportunities this property can provide for, such as a very large livestock property, nature retreat, weekender, horse trail rides and also provides some very rare species of plant life and animals amongst some very spectacular views. The property Shingle Hut Creek is 948 Hectares which includes a nature refuge over majority of the property. There is good road frontage and the property has good water with many dams, a bore and a lovely creek running through the middle of the property as well as backing up to the Main Range National Park. There is a very unique 2 storey timber style home which was built in the eighties containing 3 open bedrooms, an open plan bathroom with indoor plants surrounding, enclosed kitchen with open fire place, combustion stove, hot water, solar power and a massive verandah overlooking the picturesque valley.
